Rights of the Beneficial Owner (Investor)

- Choice of Authorization: You can choose to authorize your broker via DDPI or continue using physical/electronic Delivery Instruction Slips (DIS/e-DIS) for each transaction.
- Digital Signing: DDPI can be digitally signed or e-signed, making it more convenient and paperless.
- Revocation: You have the right to revoke the DDPI at any time by informing your Depository Participant (DP) in writing.
- Transparency: You must be informed about the scope and limitations of DDPI before signing.

Obligations of the Beneficial Owner

- Due Diligence: Ensure you understand the terms of DDPI before signing.
- Timely Updates: Notify your DP of any changes in account details or if you wish to revoke the DDPI.
- Compliance: Follow SEBI and CDSL rules while using DDPI for transactions.

Obligations of the Depository Participant (DP)

- Clear Communication: Must explain the purpose, scope, and implications of DDPI to clients.
- Record Keeping: Maintain proper records of DDPI execution and revocation.
- Security: Ensure DDPI is used only for authorized transactions like trade settlements and pledging/re-pledging of securities.
